METAL WIRE THEFT

A rising crime that affects everyone

Crime Stoppers of Grey Bruce and the South Bruce OPP are asking for the public's assistance in solving the theft of copper.

Sometime between August 18 at 2:00 p.m. and August 22, 2016 at 7:00 a.m. a Hydro One site located in the 700 Block of the Huron-Kinloss Town Line was forcibly entered and a quantity of copper wire was taken. The value of the stolen wire is estimated to be more than $200.00.

Other Crime Stopper locations have also reported similar thefts. For the second time in a month, some rural Kingston, Ont., residents were without internet as a thief cut a fibre optic cable to steal copper.

It was another day of lost business for Josh Anderson when his internet service was suddenly interrupted due to an intentionally cut telecommunication cable.

"I woke up early this morning, had alerts that the internet was down at our small business and, lo and behold, the fibre was down again," said Anderson.

Kingston Police were called to the area north of Kingston to investigate theft of a section of Bell telecommunications line. The cables, much like catalytic converters, have precious metals in them: copper.

Overnight it appears that someone cut down the Perth Road Cables and made off with the copper, much to the chagrin of people like Anderson.

"For businesses out here, it's crippling. I mean, fibre's a great service until somebody does this," added Anderson.

Kingston city councillor Gary Oosterhof, who represents the affected area, said his first concern was peoples' safety.

"People have certainly seen what's happening and it's pretty devastating. I can imagine it's not going to be easy to fix, so we certainly hope that this doesn't happen again," he said.

A representative from Bell Canada told Global News in a statement: "In this latest incident, thieves cut down a section of telecommunications fibre cable to steal the copper wire, disrupting service for more than 1,000 customers."

It's a problem that Oosterhof and Anderson said needs a solution. "There are measures that, you know, could be implemented I think to make it less attractive to be stealing copper," said Oosterhof.

"I feel like more regulation around the recycling and scrap industries. It's the same situation of stealing catalytic converters. It's the same," added Anderson.

Kingston Police said that the matter has been handed over to an investigator, and Bell is urging anyone who sees suspicious activity around electric lines to call police or Crime Stoppers..

A rising crime for thoughtless thieves

Copper wire thefts have been steadily on the rise across North America, thanks to recent upswings in its selling price. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta have all reported recent increases in the frequency of copper wire thefts on businesses, homes and construction sites alike.

There is a tragic part to this form of crime:

- In 2007, a father and son in Radford, Va., were electrocuted while allegedly trying to steal copper pipe from air conditioning units on top of an abandoned manufacturing plant.
- Earlier last summer, a man was killed in West Virginia while allegedly trying to steal copper from utility lines.
- In late July, a man was severely burned and was found dangling from atop a utility pole after allegedly trying to steal copper from the electric company.

Big risk for a small return

Such cases are on the rise, said John Shepelwich, a spokesman for Appalachian Power. "Certainly I would think a person would have to be pretty desperate. The risks that these people are taking are so high and the return is probably pretty small."

Copper has been used for thousands of years and is distinctively known for its reddish brown color. Thieves have stolen the valuable metal for decades, often from construction sites, factories, land-line phone companies, and even coal mines. But the theft of copper from electric utilities is more likely to make headlines, partly because it often causes power outages, and because it can result in deadly consequences.

While copper wire thefts aren't anything new, Dana Lohnes, Bell Aliant's director of field operations for Atlantic Canada, said levels have certainly increased since "late summer [2022], heading into the fall."

Copper wire thefts in Nova Scotia are estimated to have resulted in $1.4 million in losses to businesses, homes and government departments, according to police.

But far more can be lost in a copper wire theft—interfering with electrical units housing the metal can be extremely dangerous. A recent theft in Spryfield, N.S. resulted in a brief power outage for more than 11,000 hydro customers, while another local theft had a far more tragic outcome after police discovered a body near a Nova Scotia power substation. The medical examiner concluded the man died of electrocution.

"We're investigating the attempted theft of copper wire," police said on Feb. 7, following the discovery.

In New Brunswick, Codiac Regional RCMP says reports of copper wire theft come in almost weekly. Bell reported 50 thefts in the province between October and December, which prompted the company to hire private security.

In Ontario, provincial police are seeking information after copper wire was cut directly from a Belleville telecommunications line, resulting in nearly $10,000 worth of damage. In August 2022, Leduc, Alta., police reported that nearly $500,000 worth of copper wire was stolen from a trucking business in the hamlet of Lac La Biche.

Current and former employees suspect

Given the intricacy and danger of dealing with copper wire, some experts suggest thieves have some knowledge of working with metal.

"We find these thieves are generally people who've worked in some type of industry where they understand metal," said Ben Stickle, associate professor in criminal justice at Middle Tennessee State University. He went on to list occupations in roofing and HVAC as examples.

Last year, Statistics Canada reported that metal thefts in 2021 in Canada were at the highest levels recorded since 2013.

Stickle told the CBC that he doesn't expect the problem to disappear anytime soon, especially with a higher focus on electrification on the horizon.

Guelph police want to know if this is your stuff

(Guelph Today)

A search following an arrest, for breach of condition, led to suspected fentanyl and stolen property being found, police say.

Guelph police are looking for the owners of property believed to be stolen following a man's arrest Thursday morning.

Officers patrolling on Speedvale Avenue West spotted a sitting in the driver's seat of a vehicle and knew him to be on a release order with a condition not to occupy any driver's seat. The man was arrested for breaching the order, and a subsequent search revealed a small amount of suspected fentanyl, two stolen licence plates and a quantity of tools believed to be stolen.

A 38-year-old is charged with failing to comply with a release order, two counts of possessing stolen property and possessing a controlled substance. He will appear in a Guelph bail court June 6, 2023.

Anyone who recognizes the seized tools is asked to call Constable Bakir Medencevic at 519-824-1212, ext. 7235, or email him at bmedencevic@guelphpolice.ca.

Calgary police arrest two in series of online marketplace thefts

(Calgary Herald)

Two teens have been arrested in connection to a dozen robberies in Calgary in response to online ads for iPhones for sale.

The thefts occurred between April 23 and May 29 across the city. A buyer using the Facebook profile with the name "Chris Luma" would respond to the ad, show up at the meet and then take off without paying. It is believed multiple suspects were using the same account. Multiple reports of the same get-away vehicle led Calgary Police Service investigators to two suspects.

On June 5th, search warrants were executed and three young persons arrested and property recovered.

Police say to be cautious of selling to online profiles that have recently been created, and have few personal photos or friends. They also encourage people to meet in a public place where there is CCTV coverage like a coffee shop or police district parking lot and to bring someone with you. Saugeen Shores Police station has such a location.

Refrain from going to a stranger's house to deliver items or meeting at your own residence.

Request an e-transfer instead of cash, as this will serve as a deterrent for thieves, and do not factory-reset your phone until the sale has been completed as it can still be tracked with "Find My App."

Stay alert and observe your surroundings. If something feels wrong (like an overly nervous buyer), back away from the sale. Always report suspicious people, behaviour or crimes in progress to law enforcement by calling 9-1-1 or contact Crime Stoppers.

Human Trafficking victims rescued

(Toronto Star)

Peel police say they have rescued 13 human trafficking victims through a multi-jurisdictional human trafficking investigation dubbed 'Project Pacific.'

In a press conference Peel police also announced the arrest of five people as part of the year-long investigation.

Peel police also announced the seizure of over $48,000 of property and currency.

Det. David Laing, with the Specialized Enforcement Bureau — Vice/Human Trafficking division said the investigation started in April 2022 after Peel police received a community complaint regarding an illegal bawdy house operating out of a condominium in Mississauga.

"Members of this criminal network were using the vulnerabilities of the victims to coerce and manipulate them into working and living within these illegal (bawdy houses)," said Laing.

Police say all 13 victims are of Chinese descent and have various immigration statuses; 12 of the 13 were recruited domestically.

On March 27, police executed a residential and vehicle search warrant in Mississauga and two residential search warrants in Milton in Markham resulting in the arrest of two women.

Deputy Chief Nick Milinovich, of the Investigative and Emergency Support Services Command added that the GTA is a "major hub for human trafficking."

"Human trafficking is something that can happen anywhere to anyone," he said.

Laing said police believe there are additional victims and witnesses.

Fraud awareness during Seniors Month

June is Seniors Month in Ontario and the 2023 theme is "Working for Seniors." The Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) would like to raise awareness about frauds that target Ontario seniors, who have spent their entire life saving funds for their golden years. The OPP asks that we work collectively at sharing important fraud prevention tips with seniors in your life.

Being able to recognize frauds targeting seniors will go a long way in helping to combat cyber enabled frauds. With the public's help they want to deliver information, tips and strategies for Ontario's Seniors.

In 2022, the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre (CAFC) received fraud reports totalling a staggering $531 million in victim losses. A devastating $138 million (26%) in losses were reported by senior victims. According to the CAFC, seniors lose on average 33 per cent more than other demographics. It is estimated that only five to ten per cent of victims report scams and frauds to law enforcement.

According to the CAFC, in 2022, the top frauds affecting seniors were:

- Investment frauds represented $79.1 million in reported losses in 2022. Ontario victims reported losing over $36.5 million.
- Romance frauds represented $19.5 million in reported losses in 2022. Ontario victims reported losing over $8.8 million.
- Service scams represented $8.5 million in reported losses in 2022. Ontario victims reported losing over $6 million.

- Extortion frauds represented $7.7 million in reported losses in 2022. Ontario victims reported losing over $542,000.
- Emergency-Grandparent scams represented $7.1 million in reported losses in 2022. Ontario victims reported losing over $4.3 million.

Remember...if you fall victim to a fraud or know someone who has, contact your local police service to report the crime and report it to the CAFC at 1-888-495-8501 or online on the Fraud Reporting System (FRS), even if a financial loss did not occur.

The OPP encourages the public to visit the CAFC website to learn more about the frauds mentioned here go to antifraudcentre-centreantifraude.ca.

Police issue paving scam warning after multiple residents duped

(Global)

Spring has sprung up across the area, as have paving scams, according to Waterloo regional police. The service has issued a warning to area residents after receiving numerous reports of people being victimized in paving scams.

Police say they have been contacted by seven people this month who were duped by phony contractors, with losses totalling more than $40,000.

In one case, a group of people approached one victim to say they were doing paving work near Moore Street in Cambridge.

The victim paid them cash to come back the following day to pave their driveway but they never did the work.

In this case, the victim never signed any paperwork with the group, according to police.

Police say residents should research door-to-door companies offering these types of services to confirm their legitimacy before they provide any payment.

Suspect arrested in mortgage fraud

A man renting a home impersonated the owner, applied for a mortgage and then took the funds, Toronto police allege, and officers say the suspect may have committed other similar crimes.

Toronto police said in a news release Thursday that beginning in May 2021, the suspect rented a home using an online rental application. While renting, the suspect allegedly obtained identity information on the homeowner.

Jay A. MacDougall

The suspect then impersonated the homeowner, applied for a mortgage on the property, and collected the proceeds, police said.

On May 25, Toronto resident Jay Allen MacDougall, 42, was arrested. He's been charged with five counts of fraud over $5,000 and laundering proceeds of crime.

"Investigators believe he may have committed other similar crimes and are requesting the public to contact them with any information," police said.
